

ROCK LAIRS

Naturalistic Hideaway

Humidity is important in helping reptiles shed their skin. When laying eggs, humidity is needed to keep them from drying out and perishing. These naturalistic hideaways provide humidity for your reptiles, as well as a dark den area to feel safe. Designed to keep the humidity from escaping, the entrance is on the side. The large entrance makes it easy for the animal to climb in and allows for fresh air to be exchanged and prevent molding. The entrance ramp and wall reduces light and creates a more secure hiding space mimicking a burrow. The natural mossy appearance looks amazing and doubles as a rough surface for snakes and geckos to rub against and remove sloughing skin.

- Incredible natural look
- Provides dark secure hide with high humidity
- Humidity within lair aids in shedding, while outer texture aids in shed skin removal
- Perfect egg laying environment
